

I think that TV today is not only violent, it contains too much sex.

I never thought that I'd EVER have to hear a question about Erectile Dysfunction, from my 7 year old child! These "Reality" shows are terrible! I caught my child and some friends attempting to eat worms and ants a few weeks ago because one of the other children had other child's family does, so she wanted to imitate a stunt! Reality TV needs to end, the renovation shows are okay, and the talk shows, like Montel, Oprah, and the like are fine. They don't get too sickening. The commercials are also crazy!! I've had issues come up in my house that I really don't need to deal with yet, tampons, condoms, Viagra!! My 7 year old doesn't need to know what an erection is, but they say it over and over again in commercials! The reality shows are way too outrageous, the language, the stunts, it's uncalled for. Even the so called Family Shows deal with too many inappropriate issues. I don't care if times have changed, TV needs to go back to its heyday when the shows were wholesome and filled with values. We have enough Reality, TV should be an escape from the sex, drugs, pregnancy, murders, and assinine stunts people pull to get attention!! We don't even trun on the set anymore except to watch a movie now and then on DVD.
